YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

"Your Children Need You . . ."

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 32 and have held semi-executive jobs ever since I graduated from college. I've had three babies in the last seven years and worked through all three pregnancies. The last baby was almost born in the office. I'm not complaining, because I felt good all the way through. Last month I kept to-the-penny records and discovered that after I paid my house-keeper and laundress, added to the taxi, lunch and bus fares, payroll deductions and income tax on my salary, I cleared $77.50 for the month. This does not include money spent on clothes which I would not need if I stayed home.

I told my husband I want to quit work. He grew panicky and said, "We can't make it on one paycheck. You'll have to stay with it." I want to quit. What do you say?

PLAIN PRACTICAL
Dear Practical: I say quit. Most families manage on one check and yours can, too.

Your children need you more than you need the $7.50 a month. Your husband is unfair to insist that you stay in the harness after you've told him you prefer to stay home.

If you don't get out now, when it makes sense, you'll be totin' that barge and liffin' that bale for the rest of your life.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a charter member of the "I-wish-I-had-it-to-do-over-again" Club. I started to date a terrific girl a year ago. We are both in our early 20's and should have known better than to see each other every night for months. Well, the inevitable happened. Pretty soon the big attraction was sex and we hardly talked or went any place interesting. You know the old story.

We broke up after three months. I've dated many girls since and she's gone out with different fellows. Now I've begun to think of her again and I want to date her, but this time on the straight and narrow. Is it possible for a couple to behave themselves after they've had a sizzling love affair?—STEVE

Dear Steve: It's possible, but unlikely. To revive a once-intimate relationship on a restrained basis takes a strong will and a stronger won't. You also need cooperation from the girl.

Talk it over with her and make it plain you'd like to start dating her again—this time within moral limits.

Dear Ann Landers: "I'd like to say a few words to the girl (Continued on Page 14)"

Annual Horse Show Plans Are Underway

Peninsula Committee of the Children's Hospital is buzzing with plans for its 1960 Portuguese Bend National Horse Show set for Sept. 24 and 25 at the Portuguese Bend Riding Club. All proceeds from this annual event will go to the Convalescent Home of the Children's hospital. Mrs. John G. Davidson and Mrs. James C. Franks are co-chairmen of the affair.

The Junior Show is slated for Saturday and the open show is set for Sunday.

In the Junior show there will be three medal classes among the eighteen classes competing. Winners of the medal classes will be eligible to enter the final competitions for the United States Championships to be held in October at the Cow Palace in San Francisco and again in November at the Madison Square Garden in New York City.

At Sunday's open show there will be eight stake classes competing along with classes of hunters, jumpers and Shetland ponies.

Top exhibitors from California and Arizona will be among the 300 entrants. A party will be held for junior exhibitors and junior members of the Peninsula Committee immediately following the last event on Saturday at the "Seahorse Trough."

For the exhibitors there will be a cocktail and finger buffet following the last event on Sunday. The blue seahorse emblem of the Portuguese Bend National horse show, in six foot floral replicas will lend a motif to the gaily striped umbrellas and tables where guests will be served refreshments.

On Saturday evening, at The Courtyard, the Horse Opera Ball will add an exciting evening. (Continued on Page 14)
